THE UTAH BILL

VOL. XVIII.

THE SENATE PASSES IT BY A VOTE

Wives and Husbands Made Competent Witness Against Each Other-Women Disfranchised—
The Church Corporation to be Wound, up-Immigration to be Stopped.

Washington, January 8.—The Utah bill, which was passed by the senate today is substantially the same as when reported from the committee on December 21. The only change of consequence is the addition of a section declaring marriages incestuous that are contracted between persons with and not including the fourth degree of consanguinity. The main features of bill make the lawful husband or wife of a person accused of bigamy a competent witness, who may be compelled to testify, without the consent of the wife or husband as the case may be. An attachment who were in arrears in their correspondence, and desired to take advantage of the recess to attend to private business.

Contrary to general expectation but few committees organized. Mr. Randall has not yet issued a call for the assemblage of the appropriations committee. The new select committee on American shipping interests is atpresent without a meeting room. The same state of affairs exists as to several of the select committees, and the speaker is experiencing some trouble in his efforts to provide suitable committee rooms for the accommodation of the select committees. The committee on commay be issued for a witness without previous subparts when there is reasonable ground to believe that the subpoena would not be effective. Every marriage shall be certified to in writing by the parties concerned, including the priest. Women are prohibited from voting in the territory. All laws recognizing illegitimate children are annulled. The territorial laws recognizing that research in the control of children are annulled. The territorial laws providing that prosecutions for adultery can be commenced only on the complaint of the husband or wife, are annulled. The territorial laws creating and continuing the Mormon church corporation are annulled, and the president is to appoint, (by and with the advice of the senate), fourteen trustees to manage the property and business of the corporation, and the attorney general is ordered to institute proceedings to forfeit and escheat all property and under the property and property of the corporation in contravention. proceedings to forfeit and escheat all property acquired by the corporation in contravention of the United States laws. The escheated property is to be then sold, and the proceeds devoted to common school purposes in the territory; but no building is to be forfeited that is used exclusively for worship. All immigration companies or organizations created by the territorial government are abolished, and the atterney general is to take steps to have the immigrating fund company wound up. The existing election districts of Utah are abolished, and new ones that will give the people equal representation are to be marked out. work of the committee growing out of the assignment to it of the duty of preparing the naval appropriations bill, it was deemed proper to sub-divide the work. Accordingly Chairman Herbert was instructed to prepare a plan of sub-division for submission to the committee. From the tone of the discussion this morning it seems probable that the members will be divided into six sub-committees. The full combittee will call on Monday in a body upon the before the senate the resolution of the New York produce exchange, urging congress to make liberal provision for the signal service. The resolution was appropriately referred.

Mr. Eustis offered a concurrent resolution, with a preamble, setting forth that, whereas the act of congress of 1878 declared the silver dollar a legal tender for all debts, public and private; that by the act of 1869 the faith of the United States was solemuly helded to the United States was solemnly pledged to the payment in coin, or its equivalent, of all the public obligations not bearing interest, etc., that by the refunding act of July, 1870, the principal and interest of the debt were made redeemable in coin of their standard value; that since the enactment of those laws it had been the unvarying practice of the secretary of the reasury to pay bonds and interest in gold-coin, and that the secretary of the treasury had issued a call for ten million dollars of bonds, payable on the first of February, 1886; therefore be it resolved, etc:

the legislation of congress."

Mr. Fustis desired the resolution referred to the committee on finance, and expressed the hope that that committee would report on it at an early day, in order that it may be determined whether or not this practice of paying its bonds and interest on them exclusively in gold coin, was approved or disapproved by congress. The resolution was so referred.

The Voorhees resolution of inquiry relating to the persion office was, with his consent, allowed to go over till Monday next, with the view that a resolution of like import may be drafted that will be acceptable to both Voor hees and Harrison, for whose resolution that of Voorhees was offered as a substitute. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of bills on the calendar.

THE UTAH BILL.
The Utah bill was again taken up. Mr. Edmunds created some merriment on rising to speak on one of the amendments of fered yesterday. Looking about him and find-ing comparatively few republicans in their seats, he said: "As hardly any of the friends of human libterty are in the senate, I will address myself to the reform men."

After some debate, Mr. Brown's amendment offered yesterday, which was to strike out the words that would compel the lawful hus-band or wife of the deceased to testify, was re-jected (yeas 11, nays 42), and the compulsory m was therefore retained in the bill Mr. Morgan again called attention to the twelfth section, which provides for fourteen trustees to administer the property, business affairs and operations of the corporation known as "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." He wanted to know what their duties were to be, and why the bill was silent as to their salaries. He demanded an answer from his fellow members of the judiciary com

They would be occupied necessarily, he said, in promoting Mormonism, as he interpreted the bill under consideration, for they were to exercise all the powers granted they were to exercise all the powers granted by the territorial laws creating the conporation.

Mr. Edmunds replied that they had nothing whatever to do with church matters, or matters of faith, but only with property; to see that the church moneys, which were enormous, were not applied to the propagation of polygamy. Not one quarter of the Mormons, as Mr. Edmunds understood, believed in polygamy. Mr. Teller inquired if the Mormon church moneys were now amplied illegally, that is in

As the bill was about to be brought to a vote, r. Morgan said its friends seemed determined to press it without giving its opponents a chance to study it. He again inquired as to the salaries which the commissioners were to have. He did not want to send fourteen men out to Utah to "loot" the Mormon church. He had announced his determination to wipe this church out, and leave nothing of it but its name and an unholy memory, but had been met by the proposition in this bill to perpetute the church.

The Wind and Snow Play Sad Havoc Through the Country-Telegraph Lines Down, and Railroad Travel Stopped-Casualties of the Day-Other Damages by the Wind.

CHICAGO, January 8 .- The blizzard raging throughout Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Dakota and Minnesota is declared to be of a wider extent and fiercer in character than has been known before in years. All the moving western trains are behind time. Many other trains have been snowed in and abandoned. Very little can be learned concerning the abandoned trains or of the further effects of the storm, owing to the blowing down of the telegraph poles and wires, and the stoppage of telegraphic communication.

Monday next.

The bill introduced in the senate today by Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, to establish a postal telegraph system, is identical with the bill reported by Senator Hill, from the committee on post-offices and postroads, during the last congress.

his daughter Mary, twenty-two years old. The sons had previously married and settled upon farms which are now extensive and valuable, and to each two children have been born.

At a Methodist revival held here December

4th, Rev. John Swisher, a coal miner of massive physique and great vocal strength presided. He is a hallelujah exhorter, froths at the mouth, jumps over the pulpit, walks on the front seats and, as he says: "Shakes sinners over an open hell, so they can appreciate the climate in heaven." The Allens were visibly excited and one of them arose to explain that he was 'a believer in the adventist faith. "Read the Bible; I say to you read the Bible," was Swisher's reply, "and then you'll find out which is right." The Allen brother immediately took to studying the Bible and soon begans so enthysistic in their ole and soon became so enthusiastic in their esearches that they began to neglect their faim labors. A week ago it was remarked that they were acting irrationally. They wandered aimlessly about the neighborhood and talked with everyone they met on the subject of the Bible. After they were noticed sauntering about the road arm-in-arm, singing salms and eyeing every passer-by with dumb ndifference. Heber labored under the hallu-indifference. Heber labored under the hallu-cination that George was God and that he himself was one of the apostles. One night last week they disappeared, and upon returning heme in the morning, jaded, worn and hungry, could give no account of where they had been. Once when Heber was advised by a pitying neighbor to go home and rest, he replied:

Physical men need rest, but we men born of God need no rest; we have nothing but rest

all the time."
Both the demented men believed that they were not living in the flesh, but that they were ordained to go about and straighten up the imaginary wrongs of humanity. Eventually they grew homicidal. Their wives became darmed and neighbors volunteered to act as guards. Sunday night George Allen attempted to take the life of his wife and children with a cheese knife, because, as he explained, "God told me to sacrifice them," but three strong men watching overpowered him. He was brought here the following day and adjudged insane in Judge Evans's court.

The same night Heber chased a neighbor.

The same night Heber chased a neighbor

His altendant, alarmed at his manner and the murderous expression, forcibly led him away. Tuesday he was also taken into the court before Judge Evans. The sister Mary is still afflicted by the milder form of the insanity. She believes herself mother of God. She will be taken before the judge to-morrow or next day. Mrs. Allen, the mother of the three unfortunate children, has also lost her mind.

MECKED IN THE SNOW.

A Council Grove, Kas., dispatch says the Missouri Pacific passenger train was wrecked by snow in the Downing cut, about eight miles north, after passing there last evening. Conductor John A. In walking over a bridge Pullman slipped and fell, breaking the bone of his left leg between the knee and the ankle. Conductor Brown carried him. New Yorks, January 8.—A complimentary dinner given at Delmonico's tonight to Governor Hill, by the business men of New York, was a brilliant affair. There were two hundred subscribers to the banquet. The special guests numbered fifty persons. The toast to the president of the United States was drunk with great enthusiasm. The next toast was "Our welcome guest, called by the voice of his fellow citizens to the highest office in the state; he will not disappoint their hopes." To this Governor Hill responded eloquently.

Those who expect me to antagonize the national administration willbe disappointed. That administration needs no defense at my hands. It is administering the government satisfaction of the people. CAUSED BY BLOOD CLOTS.

Dr. Green Lectures on the Cause of the Deaths of McCullough and Vanderbilt. New York, January S.—In a lecture in Steinway hall, Dr. Green, in speaking of the deaths of McCullough and Vanderbilt, said:

"Mr. McCullough's death was caused by a clot of blood forming in the artery leading from the left car to the brain. It was one of the largest—if not the very largest—clots of blood ever found in a similar artery. The process of death was slow. The patient would become better as the artery extended and relieved the pressure on the brain. But as the artery filled again the patient would grow worse. As the clot of blood became larger from day to day the end of life approached nearer and nearer, and, when it became so large as to entirely clog the artery, there was death.

"The death of Mr. Vanderbilt was caused by a brain trouble, but, unlike Mr. McCullough's, it was sudden and came without warning or previous suffering. It undoubtedly resulted from the bursting of a blood vessel which suffused the brain with blood. Such deaths are superinduced by intense excitement." NEW YORK, January 8.-In a lecture in

His brother and family, being poor and having nowhere to go, refused to comply, and James applied to the court and obtained an order for William to years. vacate. This he has carried into effect, and the spectacle was presented of one brother casting another and his family into the street without shelter in the dead of winter. "The supposition is," continued Mr. Conover, "that while carelessly handling the revolver it went off and shot him in the temple."

There is scarcely a doubt that suicide was the cause of death, although no reliable motive is given for the deed. At one time during his life Mr. Stevens came near dying from an overdose of chloral, and about a year and a half ago he was nearly suffocated by an escape of gas in a room which he occupied in a house half ago he was nearly suffocated by an escape of gas in a room which he occupied in a house on Sixth avenue, New York. For years back he was very absent-minded, and his habits were not temperate. It is reported that he was financially embarrassed, and this preyed on his mind considerable.

They next became engaged and New Year's was set for the wedding. On that day the bridegroom failed to appear, but a telegram from his sister said that "George" was very low with typhoid fever and he was continually asking for "Theda." She hurried to his bedside at his sister's request, being promised that the marriage would soon take to his bedside at his sister's request, being promised that the marriage would soon take place. On her arrival at his house's she said she found that he had not been sick at all; that he had been trifling with her; that he was far from good looking and a shiftless fellow, with red hair, squint eyes and turn-up nose. The look of disappointment and brokenheartedness on the confiding girl's face; as she told her story, keenly feeling that she had been trifled with, was very pitiful.

BRYAN'S DIRTY LETTERS. The Girls Narrate How They Received His Advances.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., January 8 .- [Special.]-In the criminal court this morning the Bryan case was resumed. The state introduced the detectives, who detailed the circumstances of the arrest and the damaging admissions made by Bryan. When Bryan was arrested he started towards a bureau, but was arrested he started towards a bureau, but was stopped. He afterward said if he had gotten to the bureau the thing would have been settled then and there. At another time he said:
"There are things connected with this affairthat I would die before I would acknowledge."

Detective Porter identified the paper found in Bryan's room, which is like the paper on which the letters were written. Miss Hattie Prachett, who wore Miss Dar Miss Hattie Prachett, who wore Miss Dar-man's clothes, and acted as decoy, testified that she was told where to go, and the door would be a little open. He first pulled the window shade down fore he threw his arms around her. She told him to pull down the other shade and he did so. This closed the evidence for the state, and the defense asked that the others be withdrawn, as there was no evidence that Bryan wrote them.

After argument, Judge Allen announ he would leave the authenticity of the letters to the jury. Several character witnesses wer introduced by the defense, and several wh estified that the letters were not in Bryan's andwriting.

TALK ABOUT RAILROAD KINGS IN

The Rumored Absorption of the South Carolina Road by the Richmond and Danville Without Foun-dation—Jay Gould's Presence in Charlea-ton—His Views Upon Matters.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 8.-[Special.]— The rumor extensively circulated that the South Carolina railway was about to be absorbed, in some way, by the Richmond and Danville system, has gotten into the press, and created renewed talk. The Augusta, Ga,. Chronicle, of this morning, said:

Chronicle, of this morning, said:
Some time ago The Chronicle published rumors to the effect that the South Carolina railroad had been purchased by the Richmond and Danville combination. But the rumors could not at the time be verified. The presence in this section of the private car or President Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio road, has given new impetus to the report, and created the impression that this road may be interested in the alleged transfer. The brother of President Garrett was in the city yesterday en route for Charleston, and was called on, but had nothing to say on this subject.

The Columbia Register also declared that: The Columbia Register also declared that:

"It is known that negotiarions have been progressing for some time for the transfer of the South Carolina railway to the Richmond and Danville combination. Information is that the terms of arrangement have been finally agreed upon between the contracting parties, and that the formal transfer of the property will be made within a few days, as soon as the necessary papers are fully executed."

The Register then proceeds to say:
The splendid private car of President Garrett of the Baltimore and Ohio road came down with the passenger train from Charlotte yesterday afternoon, and proceeded to Charleston over the Atlantic Coast line. It is thought this trip of the railroad king and his cabinet has some connection with the South Carolina railway transfer, and that the Baltimore and Ohio perhaps have more than a finger in the pie.

THE RUMORS KNOCKED INTO "PIE."

Now, as a matter of fact, President Robert Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has not been to Charleston, and as far as any-body knows, he is not coming here. T. Harri-son Garrett, of Baltimore, a relative of Robert, and a director of Robert's railroad, and a party of his friends, arrived here in a special car, and have gone to Florida on a pleasure trip. They did not come to buy a railroad, to start a cotton factory or to hire a coon farm. There is no truth whatever in the rumor that the South Carolina railway has been bought by Garrett, or transferred to the Richmond and Danville combination, or that its condition has been changed in any respect.

Colonel J. B. Peck, manager of the South Carolina railway, said today that he was not aware of any negotiations in regard to the sale of the railway, either concluded or in progress, and if such negotiations were going on he certainly thought he would be among the first to know of them.

His statement is corroborated by Major W.
H. Brawley, counsel for the railroad, who says that the report is without foundation in fact, and that no steps have been taken looking to a transfer of the property and the franchises of

A "KING" WHO HAS BEEN PRESENT.

It is true that J. Gould has been here for two days, but he does not intend to buy a rail-read or anything else, except the best beef in the market and as much Piper Heidsick as he can get on a margin.

A reporter of the News and Courier called upon him, and in reply to a question, Mr. Gould

"What do I think of the present condition of the south and of its future prospects? Well, the south is moving ahead and its growth is steady. I see an improvement every time I come this way. It is a steady, healthy pro-gress, more marked, I think, farther west, where the soil is richer and immigration larger than it is here; but I don't see that there is any-thing to stand in the way of the fullest devel-opment of this section of the country. You are not growing too fast, but your progress is substantial and sure! "It is very necessary to the growth and pros-

"It is very necessary to the growth and pros-perity of Charleston that the channel to your harbor should be widened and deepened. With the harbor improved so that the largest ships can cross the bar, and a few more railroads reaching out to the Mississippi river, and even beyond, there is no reason why the importance of Charleston as a commercial center should not be indefinitely extended. Charleston is a great natural outlet, and its progress should be

All you want is confide in yourselves and a proper appreciation of the opportunities that are yours. Your own men should unbuckle their own stockings in which they have piled away their money, and put it into such enterprises as will build up the city and at the same time enrich them."

PLEASED WITH THE SOUTH.

Mr. Gould is very much pleased with Charleston. He likes the climate, he likes the city and he likes the people. It was suggested to him yesterday that he did not stay here long enough in his visits to see the town or to know the people, and that the more he saw of the people the better he would like them.

When asked about the situation in Wall when asked about the situation in Wall street Mr. Gould naively said: "I have no interest in Wall street now. I left all my business behind me." He said that he was going away to rest, and that, although his health was very good just now, he needed recreation. He will go from Charleston to Nassau, and then to the Windward islands.
"I may also go to Penama."

"I may also go to Panama."
"But, Mr. Gould," said the reporter, "you know that is rather a revolutionary country and they may get up a little excitement or

'Yes," said Mr. Gould, "that is true, but I reserve the right to change my course after 1 Mr. Gould will be gone for two

THE "ATALANTA" SETS SAIL.

Mr. Gould, accompanied by the captain of the Atalanta, went to Boyce's wharf shortly after 3 o'clock for the purpose of sailing. The bandsome craft was in her best attire. The decks had been hollystoned until they were as white as a ladies' white kid glove, and the burnished brasses glistened in the sunlight and dayled the over On the decks were laid and dazzled the eyes. On the decks were laid eocoa matting and rugs, running fore and aft, and on these were placed reclining steamer chairs made of willowware. The crew were chairs made of willowware. The crew were dressed in neat navy blue suits and yachting shoes, and lolled about the forward and after deck. A mariner stood guard at the gang plank and a quartermaster was in the wheel-house. Mr. Gould descended the gang-plank and at once went to the bridge with the captain, who gave the orders to cast off the lines and then range the half for the off the lines and then rang the bell for the en-gineer to "back her," The screw of the yacht commenced to churn up the muddy waters of the dock, but the yacht only keeled slightly over to starboard and did not move from her berth. The engines were rung up and worked faster, but without any result. The yacht was fact in the mud fast in the mud. fast in the mud.

Realizing this the machinery was stopped, the lines again made fast and the gang plank again put out. A few moments after this Mr. Gould, accompanied by one of his sons, a lad of about fifteen years, and a perfect likeness of his father, came ashore and walked up East Bay as far as the telegraph office. They returned about half-past 4, when another and successful attempt was made to get off. This time Mr. Gould and his son mounted the bridge, and the screw was once more set in motion. A telegraph messenger boy arrived just as the steamer got under way, however, and she was stopped until the boy could jump aboard, deliver his message and jump ashore again. The ladies of the party, the Misses Genuld, attired in neat traveling costumes of terra cotta cashmere, trimmed with furs, promenaded up and down the forward deck, their arms entwined around each other's waists just like two school girls, and apparently unmindful of the rude gaze of the gaping multitude on the wharf.

Captain Shackford once more touched the electric instrument which communicated with the engine room, and the Atalanta with a final effort freed herself from the muddy embrace of the dock and slowly but gracefully backed out into the placid bosom of the "Cooper," where she lay to until the large steam launch, which had been left at the wharf to carry off the shore hands, joined her and was hoisted on board. Then she gracefully swung around, pointed her prow towards the ocean and steamed slowly and majestically down the harbor till she reached her anchorage off the battery, when the anchors were thrown out and everything made trim and taut for the night. The Atalanta leaves tomorrow at day-light.

KILLED IN THE WRECK. Three Men Caught in the Falling Walls and Killed.

Louisville, Ky., January 8.—Late this afternoon, during a heavy snow storm, the front and middle part of the large four story warehouse occupied by A. P. Forwood & Co., Frabue & Co., and J. B. Balmsforth & Co., all cotton and commission merchants, fell suddenly, and overturning the stove, it started a destructive fire. The building was filled with cotton, tobacco, molasses and dry goods in storage, and the flames spread all over the place instantly. The building is the center of a fine block of large wholesale houses, and it looked for a time as if there was to be a conflagration, as the fire department was unable to get at the flames on account of the wreck. They soon got to work, however, and kept the flames confined to the fallen building, and at 8 o clock the fire was out. The third floor was stored with cotton, and it was this that gave way, falling on the second floor, which, in turn, fell, and then, after tottering a mement, the whole front and middle part of the building fell and blockaded half of the street. There were eleven persons in the building when the third floor fell. Peter Perkins, porter, heard the crash, and gave warning to the seven men on the second floor, who escaped by jumping from a back window to the shed. A colored porter gave the alarm on the first floor and started for the front door. It is thought he was caught and killed by the falling walls. M. H. LOTTERIES AND THE MAILS.

Reasons Given Why the Mails Should Not be Laden With Lottery Circulars.

Washington, January S.—In the senate today, Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, reported favorably, from the committee on postoffices and post reads, the bill introduced by him to prohibit the mailing of newspapers and other publications, containing lottery advertisements. The report accompanying the bill says that several states have acted resolutely and with marked unanimity in their endeavors to suppress the malign presence of lotteries. Louisiana stands almost alone in her toleration of the evil, and she has pronounced against it after 1895. Veralmost alone in her toleration of the evil, and she has pronounced against it after 1895. Vermont and Delaware qualify their prohibition by allowing such lotteries as may be authorized by their own laws, while denouncing those recognized by the laws of other states. "And it seems to the committee that this almost unanimous movement of the states to defend themselves against the demoralizing effects of lotteries ought to be recognized and promoted by the nation."

MACON, January 8 .- [Special.] - A queen proceeding on the part of a husband has just come to the surface. The names of all parties are withheld for good and sufficient reas Three men had met at the house of one of the trio to transact some business. Still discussing the matter, the man of the house said to on of the others: "We will walk on and talk of this matter as we go," and as it was in the evening, he picked up a lantern and they walked on, followed by the speaker's wife, a lady of some fifty years of age, and the other man, who politely offered the lady his arm. The two men arrived at their destination some little distance in advance of the others and as the other couple came up the man was taken aback by the husband, who began to speak pretty harshly to his wife, telling her that he knew what kind of a woman she wss, and drawing his pistol he flour-ished it at the affrighted escort who ran under a house to escape punishment. The actions of the husband are unaccountable in the face of the fact that his wife is a woman of mature age, has grand children and has always borne an unblemished reputation.

A Surprising Denouement.

Macon, January 8.—[Special.]— Harvey Fennel is a Nimrod of the first order. He has a special predilection for opossums. His dog is a dog that dearly loves to track the wily serpent to his lair, and the way he can shake a snake is curious. Beautiful Work of Art.

Macon, January 8.—[Special.]—Miss Daisy Hall, daughter of Dr. Roland B. Hall, is but twelve years old, and has had but eight months' training, but her progress in the art of crayon drawing is something remarkable. Unaided she drew a winter scene in black and white, the principal figure being a fox, posed in a lis-tening attitude on a snow bank, which she pre-sented to her father for a Christmas present. Competent artists pronounce it a work of unusual merit. The lights and shadows, and the fine lines of the picture suggest a practiced hand rather than the touch of an amateur. It is a thing of beauty.

A Funny Case. MACON, January 8.—[Special,]—A funny case came up before Judge Simmons in the superior court today. A man owned a little store near the city, and he applied for a homestead exemption, and included was $300 of provisions. In the itemized statement was set down 14 kits of mackrel, 3 bushels of salt, 10 boxes saidines, 150 boxes yeast powders, 75 cans of salmon, and some et ceteras in the way of samen, and some et ceteras in the way or sauces. Attorney Proudfit argued that those things could not properly be catalogued as provisions, but Judge Simmons held that there was no accounting for tastes and he sustained the plea. The truth of the matter is the poor fellow wanted to save his stock in trade.

THE ESCAPE OF A MURDERER.

William Garvin Gets a Shot at the Sheriff and Runs.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—All the prisoners in our jail at this place escaped on Tuesday night. A fire was kindled on the second floor and a hole burned through by which the prisoners escaped down stairs. By means of an iron bar the front door was broken open. William Garvin, the murderer of Bill Hawkinson, was heavily ironed with a chain around his neck and made fast to the center of his cell. This chain was broken and Garvin carried his necklace and chain with him. Deputy Sheriff Zorn, as soon as he learned of the escape, summoned a posse and went in pursuit. Last night he found Wilham Garvin and several of his comrades camping in the woods on the Savannah river, near the scene of his murderous act, about twenty miles from this place. An attack was made, and Mr. Zorn was badly shot with birdshot in the leg and foot hadly shot with birdshot in the leg and foot. The officer bravely made all effort to secure Garvin but failed, the night being dark and the woods too thick to make an effectual following of the escapes. It will be remembered that Garvin was reported some weeks ago as being the brute who, after killing his victim, took the body, ironed it, and endeavored to sink it in the current of the Savannah river.

Mr. Zorn is now at home having his wounds properly attended to, but detectives are still through the top of the house. Mrs. Nix asked him not to do it. He then threatened to shoot her. He then pointed the gun at her and fired, the shot lodging in her side. The young man says he laid the gun on the bed and it went off accidentally. Dr. Geldin says the shot entered her right side between her hip

Elberton Leader: Last Monday there was quite an interesting case before the court of ordinary. Richard Burton, who recently diel in this county, was a citizen of Tennessee. His will went to probate and record in the proper court of that state, and as he had property in Georgia and in this county, a certified copy of the record of the will was sent here for probate. Last Monday was the day for it to go to probate. Mrs. T. I. Bullard, one of the legatees, by her attorney, Jos. N. Worley, filed a caveat and attacked the will so far as it related to to the property here, upon the ground a caveat and attacked the win so har as it re-lated to to the property here, upon the ground that the will was not executed as required by the laws of Georgia, there being only two witnesses to it, our law requiring three. The caveat was sustained and the will declared caveat was sustained and the will declared void as to the property in this state, consisting of twelve hundred acres of land and $500 of notes secured by lands in this state. The will made Mrs. Bullard heir to an eighth of the property of deceased, after $2,000 of special legacies was deducted. As it now stands Mrs. Bullard will receive, as to the property here, a child's part, which is one-third, in right of her mother, deceased, and one-eighth of the property in Tennessee. Mr. Burton wrote his will himself. In Gwinnett county Dan Roberts and Yancy

Brooks had a serious affray at their home, which came near resulting fatally. These young men lived in the same house for some time, and for years have been warm friends, but the same house time is discounted. Let but their co-partnership is dissolved. Last Monday Roberts went to Logansville and in-vested in a new knife and corn juice. He re-turned home that night, and while he and Brooks were sitting by the fire, Roberts remarked that he intended to try his knife on somebody before he went to bed. Brooks, thinking the remark was intended for him, rovided a stick of wood and laid it close to s chair for an emergency. As soon Roberts saw that Brooks was fortifying, he charged him and commenced cutting, but Brooks succeeded in knocking him back with tick struck a joist and was knocked from his band. Roberts saw his advantage and closed in on him, when Brooks run out of the house pursued by Roberts cutting at him, until they arrived at the wood pile, when Brooks siezed an ax and knocked him down and beat him badly. John Harrison, who was present, parted them, and in looking around it was as-certained that Brooks had received ten or twelve slight flesh wounds and Roberts had his nose broke and a number of severe bruises that will close his Christmas frolic.

Land Sales in Madison.

Danielsville, Ga., January 9.—[Special.]— The land sales here were as follows: The lands of William McCurdy, deceased, near Paoli, 133 acres, to John A. McCurdy, of Mayesville, for $1,025; of James Arnold, colored, deceased, near Paoli, 187 acres, to W. W. Scott, for $825; of W. Grimes, deceased, one and three-quarter miles southeast of Danielsville, on the Paoli road, 118½ acres to F. W. Graham, $1,309; five and one half acres to W. Grimes, Jr., for $119. and two acres cut off to straighten the lines to Thomas A. Grimes, for $28. All was sold at administrator's sale, and all sold well except that of James Arnold, deceased, which is said to be worth considerably more. Some personalty was sold at sheriff's sale, bringing very little money.

Marietta's New School.

MARIETTA, Ga., January 8 .- [Special.] - The new Marietta male academy is completed, and opened last Monday with a flattering number of scholars. Professor J. C. Harris, of Cedar-town, is in charge of the school, and the board of directors could not have secured a more able or efficient teacher. The building is fitted out with all the latest modern improvements, and those who have seen others say it is the most complete school building in the south.

Land Sales in Haralson.

BUCHANAN, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—Several good farms were sold at public outcry Several good farms were sold ab public outery here today. One of 80 acres, fifteen of which was good bottom, only brought one hundred and fifty dollars. Another of four hundred acres, with a fine dwelling on it, only brought seventeen hundred dollars. The farm of J. C. Mann, which was levied on by some Atlanta merchant for debts amounting to thirteen hundred and fifty dollars, was homesteaded.

The Signal Service in Adairsville. ADAIRSVILLE, Ga., January 8.—[Special]—The town has concluded to avail itself of the signal service. Arrangements have been made for flags, etc. The pole will be erected on Bread street, near the Western and Atlantic railroad depot. It will go into effect at an early day. Then our people can tell when to pull up their overcoat collars and carry an umbrella.

The Sylvania Railroad Directors.

SYLVANIA, Ga., January 8. - [Special.] -- Those who had shares in the Sylvania railroad free rides to and from our town on Tuesday. The stockholders held a meeting at the depot, at which the old board of directors was reelected, there being no opposition. Cedartown Improvements.

WITHOUT A COUNTRY."

STRANGE STORY OF A UNITED STATES OFFICER.

Etory of Philip Notan, a Young Officer in the Legion of the West," Annu Burr's Opinion of Him-Nolan Courtmentialed and What Became of Him-A Sketch, Etc. From the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette On the 13th of August, 1863, the New York Herald contained the following announce-"NOLAN-Died on board U. S. Corvette Levant, Lat. 2° 11" S., Long., 131° W., on the 11th of May, Philip Nolan." This of itself would attract no special atten-

"I happened to observe it," says Edward Everett Hale, "as my memory for names and people are good, and the reader will see, as he goes on, that I had reason enough to remember Philip Nolan.

"Philip Nolan was as fine a young officer as there was in the 'Legion of the West,' as the western division of the army was called, during Jefferson's administration. When Aaron Burr made his first dashing expedition down to New Orleans in 1805, at Fort Massac, or somewhere above on the river he met, as the devil would have it, this gay, dashing, bright young fellow at some dinner party, I think. Burr marked him, talked to him, walked with him, took him a day or two's voyage in his flatboat, and in short fascinated him. For the next ear barrack life was very tame to poor Nolan. He occasionally availed himself of the permission the great man had given him to write to Long, high-worded, stilted letters the poor boy wrote and rewrote and copied. But never a line did he have in reply from the gay

The next time Burr came down the river not as an attorney seeking a place for his office, but as a disguised conqueror. He had defeated I know not how many district attorneys; he had dined at I know not how many public dinners; he had been heralded in I know not how many Weekly Arguses, and it was rumored he had an army behind him and an empire before him. It was a great day for poor Nolan. Burr had not been at the fort an hour before he sent for him That evening Nolan took him out in his skiff; fore the sail was over Nolan was enlisted bedy and soul.

"What Burr meant to do I know no more than you, dear reader. It is none of our business just now. Only when the grand catastrophe came, and Jefferson and the House of Virginia of that day undertook to break on the wheel all the possible Clarences of the then house I york by the great treason-trail at house of York, by the great treason-trial at Richmond, some of the lesser-fry in that dis-ant Mississippi valley, which was farther from is than Puget's sound is today, introduced the like novelty on their provincial stage, and, to while away the monotony of the summer at Fort Adams, got up for spectacles a string of court-martials on the officers there. One and another of the colonels and majors were tried, and to fill out the list little Nolan, against and to fill out the list little Noian, against whom. Heaven knows, there was evidence enough. Nolan was proved guilty enough, as I say; yet you and I would never have heard of him but that, when the president of the court asked him at the close whether he wished to say anything to show that he had always been faithful to the United States he cried out in a. faithful to the United States, he cried out in a

att of frenzy.

"D-n the United States! I wish I may never hear of the United States again."

"I suppose he did not know how the words shocked old Colonel Morgan, who was holding the court. He had been fed by the United States' for all the years since he had been in the years. He had sworn on his faith as a Christian. States' for all the years since he had been in the army. He had sworn on his faith as a Christian to be true to the 'United States.' It was the 'United States' which gave him the uniform he wore, and the sword by his side. Nay, my poor Nolan, it was only because 'United States' had picked you out first, as one of her own confidential men of honor, that 'Aaron Burr' cared for you a straw more than for the flatboat men who sailed his ark for him. He damned his country, and wished he might never hear her name again.

"He never did hear her name but once again. From that moment, September 23, 1807, till the

From that moment, September 23, 1807, till the day he died. May 11, 1863, he never heard her mame again. For that half century or more, he was a man without a country.

"Old Morgan, as I said, was terribly shocked.

If Nolan had compared George Washington to Benedict Arnold, or cried 'God save King George,' Morgan would not have felt worse. He called the court into his private room and returned in fifteen minutes, with a face like a

Sheet, to say a
"Prisoner, hear the sentence of the court.
The court decides, subject to the approval of president, that you never hear the name of the United States again.

"Nolan laughed. But nobody else laughed.
Then Morgan added: Mr. Marshal, take the prisoner to Orleans in an armed boat and deliver him to the naval commander there.'
"Nolan was taken to New Orleans. Colonel Morgan took the proceedings of the court to Washington and explained them to Mr. Jefferson. They were approved by the president. Before the nautilus got round from New Orleans to the Northern Atlantic coast with the prisoner on board the sentence had been approved, and Nolan was a man without a Country."

Mr. Hale here writes as follows: "When I was second officer of the Intrepid, some thirty years after, I saw the original paper of instruc-tions," and he then gives it as closely as his memory will permit. It is as follows:

"Washington,-, 180% "WASHINGTON...., 1807"SIR-You will receive from Lieutenant Neale the person of Philip Nolan, late a lieutenant in the United States army.
"This person, on his trial by court-martial expressed with an oath the wish that he might ver hear of the United States again.'

The court sentenced him to have his wish

"For the present the execution of the order is intrusted by the president to this depart ment.

"You will take the prisoner on board of your ship and keep him there with such precautions as shall prevent his escape.

"You will provide him with such quarters, rations and clothing as would be proper for an officer of his late rank if he were a passenger on your vessel on the business of his government.

The gentlemen on board will make any arrangements agreeable to themselves regarding to his society. He is to be exposed to no indignity of any kind, nor is he ever unnecessarily to be reminded that he is a prisoner.

"But under no circumstances is he ever to hear of his country or to see any information hear of his country or to see any information regarding it; and you will specially caution all the officers under your command to take care, that in the various indulgences which may be granted, this rule, in which his punishment is involved, shall not be broken.

"It is the intention of the government that he shall never again see the country he has disowned.

"Before the end of your cruise you will receive orders which will give effect to this intention. Respectfully yours,

"W. SOUTHARD, for secretary of the navy,"

The author of this sketch thinks Captain Shaw was the commander of the ship, and that these instructions passed from one commander to another, as from time to time he was rhanged from one ship to another, each holding this paper as authority for keeping Nolan in custody. If it was Captain Shaw, he then regulated the etiquette and the precautions of the aftair, and according to his scheme they were carried out till Nolan died.

This now brings us to the day—some time late in 1807—when Philip Nolan touched his feet to mother earth for the last time.

If will give a few touching anecdotes of his life on board of ship for fifty-three years.

Mr. Hale says: "No mess liked to have him permanently, because his presence cut off all talk of heme or of the prospects of return, of politics or letters, of peace or of war—cut off more than half the talk men like to have at Sea. The captain always asked him to dinner on Monday. Every mess in succession took up The author of this sketch thinks Captain somebody went over them and cut out any advestisement or stray paragraph that alluded to America.

"Nolan was permitted to join the circle one afternoon, when a lot of officer sat on deck smoking and reading aloud. They were reading the Lay of the Last Minstrel. Nolan's turn to read came. Nobody in the circle knew a line of the poem. Poor Nolan read steadily through the fifth canto, stopped a moment and drank something and then began without a thought of what was coming:

"Breathes there the man, with soul so dead,

Breathes there the man, with soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said— "It seems impossible to us that anybody ever heard this for the first time; but all those fel-lows did then, and poor Noian himself went on, still unconsciously or mechanically,—

"This is my own, my native land! Then they all saw something was to pay; but he expected to get through, I suppose, turned a little pale, but plunged on,— "Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned. As home his footsteps he hath turned From wandering on a foreign strand? If such there breathe, go, mark him well.

He gagged a little, colored crimson, and stag-

"For him no minstrel raptures swell: High though his titles, proud his name, Eoundless his wealth as wish ean claim, Despite these titles, power and pelf, The wretch, centered all in self— "And here the poor fellow choked, could not go on; but started up, swang the book into the sea, vanished into his stateroom, and we did not see him for two months again. Many incidents in the life of this man Nor lan I would like to give, but my article is already too long. A few extracts from a letter written by Danforth, commander, I presume, of the Levant, will close my letter. Nolan lay in his stateroom never to come forth again. He sends for Danforth, and the latter's letter will explain Nolan's last hours "Well I want." will explain Nolan's last hours, "Well, I went in, and there to be sure, the poor fellow lay in his berth, smilling pleasantly as he gave me his hand, but looking very frail. The stars and stripes were triced up above and around a picture of Washington, and he had painted amajestic cagle, with his foot just clasping the majestic eagle, with his foot just clasping the whole globe, which his wings overshadowed. The dear, old boy saw my glance, and said, with a sad smile, "Here you see I have a country?" He had a great map of the United States, as he had drawn it from memory. Quaint, queer old names were on it, in large letters, 'Indian territory,' Mississippi territory,' etc., 'O, Danforth,' he said, 'I know I am dying. I cannot live long. Surely you will tell me something now. There is not in this tell me something now. There is not in this tell me semething now. There is not in this ship, there is not in America—God bless her a more loyal man than I. There can not be a man who loves the old flag as I do. There are thirty-four stars in it now, Danforth. I thank God for that, though I do not know what their names are. There has never been one taken away. I thank God for that. I know by that that there nover has been any for that there nover has been any successful Burr. But tell me, tell me something, Danforth, before I die!"

"Mr. Nolan," said I, "I will tell you everything you ask about; only, where shall I begin?" gin?"
Nolan then for the first time in fifty-three years heard something of his country. Danforth says he was wild with joy, and alternately laughed and wept in hysterical delirium. After spending more than an hour with him, Danforth went away, with this injunction from Nolan, the very last words he ever heard from the lips of the poor exile: "Look in my Bible, Danforth, when I am "In an hour." says Danforth, "when the doctor went in gently, he found that Nolan had breathed his-life away with a smile. He had something pressed close to his lips. It was his father's badge of the order of Cincinnati.

"We looked in kts Bible, and there was slip of paper. On it was written:
"Bury me in the sea; it has been my hom "Bury me in the sea; it has been my home and I love it. But will not some one set up a stone for my memory at Fort Adams or at Orleans, that my disgrace may not be more than I ought to bear? Say on it:

Articular Rheumatism Cured-The Doctor Endorses It.

About six weeks ago I was attacked with Articular Rheumatism in my ankles, knees and hips. For three weeks I was under the usual treatment for such diseases without any appreciable benefit. Finally my physician discontinued all other treatment and put me exclusively on the use of Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer, and in ten days after I began the use of it, with the exception of a little stiffness about my joints, all other symptoms of the disease had passed off, and I now feel entirely well again. I would state that for a number of years I have suffered from occasional attacks of rheumatism and have tried various courses of treatment, but have found nothing that acted so promptly and pleasantly as Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer.

MRS. M. S. TUCKER. MRS. M. S. TUCKER. Griffin, Ga.

As the above case of Mrs. Tucker was treated by myself, I do most cheerfully certify to the correctness of her statement. I used Guina's Pioneer Blood Renewer after the ordinary treatment of rheumatism had failed to control the disease.

THE senate has passed, by a vote of 34 to 7, the Edmunds Utah bill, which provides for the more effectual suppression of Mormonism. Two features of the bill are the disfranchisement of women in the territory, and the clause compelling wives to testify against their husbands.

THE senate committee on postoffices has reported favorably a bill to exclude from the mails newspapers which print lottery advertisements. The report states that Louisiana stands alone among the states in tolerating lotteries, and goes on to argue the constitutionality of the proposed measure.

FANATICS make strange alliances. The pending bill in the senate to disfranchise the women of Utah is intended to disfranchise a lot of voters who are but the slaves of their Bluebeard masters. The female suffragists of New York, however, take the matter up, and have protested against this disfranchise

This plan of settling stubborn contests is peculiarly well adapted to those southern towns, in which there is only one regularly organized party.

THERE are still some who think the United States senate will be democratic in March. 1887; but they are leaning on a reed when they count on a democratic senator from New York. The republicans of that state may quarrel, but they will not quarrel enough to overcome the gerrymander they have established, which holds good until a state census is taken. Such census should have been taken last year.

THE ways and means committee consists of eight democrats and five republicans. All of the democrats are revenue reformers, but they represent different degrees of reform. Messrs. Morrison, Mills and McMillan are extreme reformers; Messrs. Harris, Mayberry and the two Breckenridges are moderate reformers, and Mr. Hewitt is an eccentric reformer. Mr. Hewitt favors free raw material, and the other seven democrats of the committee favor a revision of the tariff more or less thorough. The republican members are all protectionists, Mr. Brown of Indiana, being only less radical than his

Congress and the Navy.

Under the old plan the naval committee had nothing to do with appropriations for the navy. It could do nothing towards the construction, armament or equipment of war vessels. Although it was considered the only committee of the house that studied paval architecture or the needs of the country in the direction of war vessels, yet its action was confined to the reporting of half a dozen bills of minor importance relating to seamen and the like, all of which almost invariably remained on the calendar at the end of the session. The new rules, howev er, render the naval committee one of the most important of the house. It will prepare hereafter the naval appropriation bill, and if we are to lay the foundations of a new pavy, the new policy must first be outlined in the committee room over which Mr. Herbert, of Alabama presides.

If this committee should decide that the present is the best time in which to begin the construction of a real navy, it is to be hoped it will not attempt, as congress frequently has in the past, to deal with and settle questions relating to ship-designing and ship-building that only professional experts understand. This has been one of the chief mistakes of past administrations. In England such a course would be considered preposterous. Parliament appropriates a sum of money for the navy, and leaves all plans and details to men competent to deal with them. Let congress vote a given sum of money to the work of ship-building, and let it leave Secretary Whitney and his technical subordinates free to expend the money as their judgment and experience may die tate. Hold Mr. Whitney to a rigid responsibility; give him to understand that any failure on the part of his assistants will be visited on his head: but while you do this do not cripple him with restrictions and plans that may not prove practicable. Add to his power and to his responsibility. This is the English way, and it is the true way.

It is a long time since the country has had so capable, and, perhaps, ambitious a naval secretary, as it has at present; and if congress will do its part and permit Mr. Whitney to do his unshackled, the country will be in a fair way to get ships that will float, and that will be mighty handy along our long coast line in case of war with a foreign power.

"After a Market."

Under this head the esteemed Boston Herald prints the following paragraph, which is intended to be a comment on some remarks that recently appeared in these columns:

"What the southern farmers need is a market, eccording to THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. And this, it insists, they cannot secure "under the auspices of free trade." If a 46 per cent tariff will not es of free trade." If a 46 per cent tariff will not the farmers a market, after it has been mainained for more than twenty years, what can they expect from this one-sided stone wall? Would THE STITUTION advise that the tariff be made pro on everything as a means of The common sense way would seem to be to let down the bars a little-not raise them

The Herald knows, if it knows anything, that the present tariff has nothing whatever to do with the failure of the farmers of the south to find adequate markets for their stuff. The condition of this section has been such as almost to forbid the investment of capital in manufacturing industries. But there has been a wonderful improvement in this direction during the past fifteen years. Industries have sprung and are springing up, the population of our towns and cities is increasing, and there is every reason to believe that the next decade will witness a remarkable increase in the development of the manufac turing industries of the south, as well as an extraordinary increase in the small industries that concentrate capital and population. So far as the south is concerned, there is no point to the Herald's paragraph. On the other hand, there can be no doubt that the tariff, by building up new industries and increasing the capacity of old ones, has given the farmers of the north an adequate market for their products-a market which enables them to pay the tax which, according to free-traders, protection levies on them, and to realize comfortable profits besides. The Herald ought to have paid a passing tribute to free trade between the states-a system under which the agricultural states are drained of all their profits for the benefit of states the industries of which have been built up under a protective tariff. Theories are very fine things, but the simple truth is (1) that the farmers of the south will never prosper until they have home markets for their products; (2) that they will never have home markets until factories and other industries are built up in the south; and (3) that these home manufactories and industries cannot be built up under free trade.

A Singular Epidemic. At San Salvador, in the Bahamas, there is at present one of the most wonderful religious outbreaks on record.

Some months ago a young girl imagined that she saw visions. Her excitement seemed to be contagious, and in the course of a few weeks some twenty girls were similarly affected. They organized meetings, and all who participated were seized by a kind of frenzy. Altogether, some five hundred people fell victims to this epidemic of hysteria. Work was generally neglected, and for months everybody went to the meetings.

A remarkable feature about the visions has the accuracy with which these dreamers saw and reported the actions of persons who were many miles away. The pastors of the churches have been at a loss as to the proper course to pursue. They regard the move ment as an unaccountable craze, and yet there is a good deal of genuine earnestness at the bottom of it. A parallel case, it will be recollected, occurred in Kentucky during the early part of the present century. The Bahama manifestations will soon come to an end, and it is not likely that they will leave any lasting impression either for good or country, just at present, seems to lie towards the founding of public libraries—that s, of public libraries accessible to the people without fee. The Newberry bequest of $2, 500,000 to Chicago, "to be applied to the founding of a free public library," does not stand alone by any means. Mr. Adolph Sutro is about to erect a splendid building in San Francisco for a free public library, and in the course of a trip around the world, he has already collected 60,000 volumes of great value. In Baltimore the gift of more than a million of dollars by Mr. Enoch Pratt. has already resulted in the erection of a central has mid

building, to be followed by the establishment of branches, the whole to cost more than a million, and to have an annual income of $50,000. In Pittsburg Mr. Andrew Carnegie has started the good work of bringng books within the reach of all residents of his smoky city, by tendering the city a donation of $242,000. In Massachusetts private liberality has erected beautiful library buildings in a dozen cities, and liberally endowed them. The Lenox and the Astor libraries in New York city are further instances of generous bequests of this nature. Wealthy men are coming to understand that a public library is a much better and a more enduring monument than a senseless shaft or mausoleum. Our own Young Men's library needs help. It has a fine building centrally located. Its 10,000 or 12,000 volumes are well selected But its usefulness is impaired by a want of revenue. It is burdened with a debt of $12,-000, and all the rental of its stores is by deed devoted to the payment of the principal and interest of its debt. Years will be consumed in the process; and in the meanwhile, the people are losing the benefits that the library would otherwise afford. If the library were free of debt and had a moderate endowment it could be, and should be, made a free library. In that case, the Young Men's library would become a power for good in this community. It is not now a power for good on account of the lack of funds. It needs to be placed on a solid foundation. It practically belongs to the people; and the people who need books, and who have the good of this city at heart, and who understand what benefits can flow from free books, should take steps to lift our only public library, now so handsomely started, above the need of money, and leave it free to do the work that such an institution is capable of doing. There are few more important questions before our people than those that relate to the support and endowment of the Young Men's library.

The Silver Question in Germany.

A London dispatch says that the agitation favor of a bimetallic standard of currency in Germany has attained great proportions. A committee of the German Farmers' congress has already handed to Chancellor Bismarck and the reichstag two hundred petitions from farmers' and peasants' unions de manding the restoration of silver. The language of the petitioners is as strong as could be used by Congressman Bland or Senator Allison. They protest against the charge that bimetallism means injustice to creditors, and they declare that, on the other hand, the enforcement of the monometallic gold standard is grossly unjust to debtors, because it makes money dear. Customs duties on grain will not, they declare, suffice to save German agriculture, which is threatened with ruin unless it is rescued by silver. The petitioners solemnly aver that Germany cannot afford to wait upon England in this matter, but must act with bimetallic states only, and that silver must be restored.

Prince Bismarck has been much impressed by the extent of the demonstration in favor of silver, and is anxiously considering his The farmers declare that any damage which can possibly be done to commerce or the banks by a return to the double standard would be very trivial in comparison to the absolute ruin which is menacing German agriculture.

The German farmers and peasants evident ly understand the situation. The attempt to demonetize silver in the United States will have the same results if successful. In that event a debt of one hundred dollars will have to be paid with one hundred and twenty dollars in gold. This is the result toward which the gold-bugs are working.

Baton Rouge has succeeded in profiled cotton plant that promises to be the south's great staple. It is to the south's great staple. It is to the south's experimenting with cotton for experimenting a specific deteng a hybridized cotton plant that promises to revolutionize the south's great staple. It is to the effect that after experimenting with cotton for some time, he has succeeded in procuring a species of the plant which grows to a height of fourteen fect and produces a staple that is long and sllky, and can be made to yield four bales to the acre. The plan by which this species of cotton was developed is described as follows: The stamens of the cotton blossoms were removed early in the morning before the bloom was opened, and the pollen of an okra blossom was spected therein. The blossom thus hybridized is then protected by cloths to prevent insects from harming it, and as soon as the bolls are formed the cloths are removed. In this way the experimenter has succeeded in securing a supply of seed sufficient to sow an acre, and will be enabled next year to continue his experiment on a much larger scale, and fully test its practical utility. Reports of such new departures as these must always be received with considerable credulty. Is will be remembered that a few years ago it was reported that some one had discovered. considerable credulity. It will be remembered that a few years ago it was reported that some one had discovered a new species of cotton which promised; to revolutionize the culture and manufacture of the staple, and the story created considerable excitement. But the alleged new plant turned out to be a myth, and which soon came to be understood as a lunge joke. This latest reported discovery, however, has attracted the attention of the Scientific American, which thinks it of sufficient consequence to be worthy of investigation. Should the seed secured by the Louisiana experimenter prove fertile, he will be able to give practical evidence of his discovery, and the cotton producing as well as the covery, and the cotton producing as well as the cotton weaving world will watch the development of the new variety with considerable interest.

A GREAT poet thought that the proper study of mankind was man. Professor Lintner, of Albany, New York, knows better. The proper study of mankind is bugs. The professor in the course of a recent lecture stated that two hundred species of insects are known now to e committing depredations on the apple trees of the country. At the time of the settlement of the country, few or none of these were to be found in America. The carpet bug is an other late importation. In Europe, a new and unknown insect is hailed with delight. Here, where we have 50,000 species, no considerable collection but has many unnamed and unknown to the books. Fifty years ago a writer on entomology said we had in America two distinct species, a black and a red variety. Now on the check list of the United States are 9,700 species of the coleoptera family of beetles, and a revised list will include thousands more. From the numbers already found, 625 distinct species of cockroaches have been estimated to have existed in the paleozoic ages of the world. For an hour or two this able-bodied scientist

"Lynch him!" shouted the crowd. "Lynch me if you dare!" exclaimed Stevens, raising his right hand with an apparent intention of defending himself even against such fearful odds. Other officers came up, and with difficulty the party pushed their way to the city hall. There the main body of the mob was met. The yells were almost deafening as the prisoner was taken to the elevator. He was pushed into the car and the barred door slid between him and the crowd. Before the conductor could start the elevator, the mob pushed toward Stevens and tore the iron door of the shaft from its fastenings. The police finally drove the crowd back.

THE recent death of Dr. Weymar in the Siberian lead mines recalls a notable career, Weymar was the czar's court physician. He had a fine practice and his social position was very high. It came to the knowledge of the olice that the doctor was leading a dual life. Pretending to be devoted to the czar he nevertheless found out his secrets and gave them to the nihilists. In 1880 General Messendoff was assassinated. The evidence implicated Weyand he was sent to Siberia. In 1884 one of Messendoff's assassins was executed, and on the scaf fold he solemnly declared that the doctor was innocent. In Russia very little attention is paid to the statements of dying criminals. The nihilists stick together so faithfully that they would not hesitate to perjure themselves to shield a friend. The poor doctor was, therefore, kept at bard labor in Siberia until death came to his release. The question of his guilt or innocence will never be settled.

The Battles of the Dead.

From the Detroit Free Press. It is midnight in the brick farm house at Chancellorsville—the new building on the site of the one partially destroyed when Hooker marched his troops into the wilderness to get in the rear of Lee at Fredericksburg. In the yard are the rotting wheels of gun-carriages; in the south wall are a dozen cannon balls firmly imbedded; haif a mile beltw is the stone marking the spot where Stone-wall Jackson received his mortal wound; here is the same dark forest which sheltered friend and Then may be you'd like to see it?"

"What?"
"The battle of Chancellorsville. The federal troops are now in sight on the Ely's Ford road."

I hastily dressed and passed out into the yard with him. I noticed that he had on a confederate uniform, dusty and worn. I looked at my own garments: they were blue. He pointed his finger own the road, and I saw through the mist of th summer night a great army approaching. There was cavalry, infantry and artillery—there were flags and banners and ambulances. In two mir ites more the head of the column had reached the Chancellorsville plank road. Some turned to the right, some to the left, some plunged into the gloomy pine thickets beyond.

But I hear no noise-not the foo'step of a horse nor the clank of a saber," I protested.
"Hush! 'Tis a battle of the dead! The spirits of the thousands who fell here have come to fight the battle once again!"

I looked at him more closely, and I saw the light of battle in his eyes. His form grew erect, his feet seemed impatient and he scented the air as if eager to join in the fray.

Now the highways and byways—the cleared fields the open woods—the lonely thickets were full of blue uniforms. Couriers and sides galloped here and there—staff officers turned heads of columns to the right or left. It was so strange to witness those thousands moving with such order and yet giving out no sound. "Look-see!" whispered my companion as he pointed down the plank road.

There was a cloud of smoke rolling up out of the pine woods and blotching the star-lit sky like a stain of blood. It spread and grew until half the stars of heaven were hidden. Meanwhile, the face of every man in blue was turned that way. We saw battery after battery, regiment after regiment, brigade after brigade, move down to the scene of conflict. Tongues of flame flashed through the smoke-cloud and lighted up thicket and field, but there was no sound. The stillness of night was "Here are the results!" whispered the confeder ate, and I looked to the right and left to behold the dead and wounded. I could see them in the felds, under the pines, on the highway. Some faces show fearland horror-others expressed vindic tiveness. There were horses lying dead—others hobbling about and seeming to appeal for mercy. "It is horrible," I whispered.

"Aye! but it is over."

I looked again and the vision had faded. The highways were barren of life—the fields and for-ests at peace. The smoke-cloud had disappeared, and the dead and wounded had been spirited "And so the dead of the armies fight their battles

CONSTITUTIONALS.

Seneral Gossip and Editorial Short Stops Caught on the Run No city in this country is so rich in "characters" as is Washington. A "character" is a man or a woman in whose life or disposition there is to be found something different from the ordinary ron line of humanity. One of the most familiar faces to be seen in Washington is that of Dr. Bliss, the man who igured to prominently during the long two month and a half when Garfield lay slowly drifting to death under the impetus of Guiteau's bullet.

The doctor may be seen almost any day in the orridors of Willard's hotel, and the group always gathered about him aftests his personal popularity and his charming conversat ers. He is a handsome old man and bears a strik ing resemblance to Judge Folger, former secretar of the treasury. He is almost as dark as an Indian, with hair and side whiskers of a murky whiten and he is usually seen standing with head slight inclined, listening attentively to every word ad dressed to him, or with husky, weak voice and animated expression, talking in the most enter taining style to those around him.

About one year ago the doctor's health began to fail. Years of incessant smoking had at last asserted its insidious and deleterious effect, and his friends at one time feared that death was about lay its hand upon him. But he resolutely aban doned tobacco forever, and at once his health be gan to improve. It is now sufficiently robust to allow him to pursue his professional duties with all his former energy and activity.

Almost the entire life of Dr. Bliss has been associated with Washington, When quite a young man he began his practice here and achieved steady success until about fifteen years ago an alleged discovery in medical science engree attention, diverted from his practice, and finally came near proving his ruin

It is said that many years ago in some wild porion of South America a man lay sick almost leath of cancer. His wife, grown weary constant watch over the slow course of the disease. etermined to shorten her husband's sufferings by hastening his death. She went into the forest and gathered a quantity of herbs, supposed t sonous, made of it a tea and admini-tered to her husband as medicin her surprise he immediatel began to recover. When he was entirely relieved the fame of the cure spread and the herb was generally use in his tribe. The direful intent of a modern Lucretia Borgia was thus perverted into Its native name was condurango, and it still clings to it. It was heard of in this country. Men catch at any possible remedy for cancer as drowning reatures grasp at straws.

When the rumors of this savage cure were rife Washington, the wife of a prominent politician ay direly sick of a caneer. Dr. Bliss was her physician. Her disease would yield to no treatnent within the scope of ordinary practice. A consul in South America who was a frie afflicted lady, sent some condurango and begged last resort, but with no hope of a cure, adopted this medicine, It was the first use ever it in this country. The patient recovered and that fact changed the entire drift of the life of Dr. Bliss

He believed that he saw in the success of his reatment of this case with condurango, the prom e of victory over a disease that had hitherto baffled all medical skill and an opportunity of a pricelers service to mankind. He abandoned his regular practice to devote his entire time to experients with this new drug. He swent to South America, visited the fields of its growth and gathered all attainable evidence as to its properties and use. Returning home, he expended the greater part of his fortune in fiting up a laboratory in New York for the manufacture of prepared condurango, the won drous drug which was to revolutionize the treatment of cancer.

cancer and it was pregnant with danger in its general use. After many years of unfailing faith and untiring experiment Dr. Bliss was compelled to abandon condurango his ordinary practice was gene and he was forced at middle age to begin his

Returning to Washington, he continued as best be could the practice of medicine, but his success was not encouraging.

One July morning the country was shocked by the shot of an assassin, which laid low a newly in augurated president. Dr. Bliss was instantly sum moned and assumed charge name figured dispatches and bulietins throughout the world and the most authentic reports from the bedside of the dying president were supposed to come from him. During the course of President Garfield's treatment and after his death his physicians were subject to constant and merciless criticism, and Dr. Bliss had his full share of this.

*Congress paid him $25,000 for his services to the assassinated president, and then there was another squabble as to the precedence in dignity and value of service of the various doctors ployed. The appropriation of congress and the fame of his exalted employment placed Br. Bliss firmly on his financial feet once more. He now does a very large and lucrative practice in Washington While the learned doctors were diagnosing Garfield's case there was constantly beside him a man whose only duty was to lift the sufferer and to adjust his postures to the greatest possible comfort This man was a fat, good natured fellow, named Crump, who had occupied the position of steward at the white house for several years. One night Crump leaned over to lift the wounded president to an easier position, and felt a sharp pain in his back. Garfield weighed about 200 pounds, and the strain of raising him broke one of the spinal muscles in Crump's back. He has been a physical wreck ever since I saw the poor fellow the other night, and he tol me that while he could shuffle along on his feet he had never been able to dress or undress himself since something broke in his back as he lifted Garfield. If he saw a hundred thousand dollars lying in front of him he could not pick it up. He is compelled to move slowly and with great care to get about at all.

Crump's claim for compensation went to congress along with those of the physicians. He received $300, while the smallest fee paid to any of the numerous doctors who experimented on tinguished sufferer was $5,000. Crump is keeping a little restaurant in Washington and trying to make a living, but he has a sus picion that republics are ungrateful. Not Excelled By Any Other.

The Census Agitation Threatens the Harmony of the Party.

COLUMBIA, S. C., January 8.—[Special.]—
The democracy of South Carolina, which has been as solid as a granite block ever since the memorable campaign of 1876, is threatened with liquefaction. While there is no danger of the dominant party relinquishing its control of the state government, there is a possibility of the whites separating into two factions. Should that happen what course would the negro voters adopt? This is the ever recurring question which has given pause whenever people begin talking about a division of the democratic party. Whether there is any substance in the dread apprehension of a possible restoration of negro rule in this state is a question concerning which there are diverse views. Many astute politicians have arrived at the conclusion that now is an opportune time for the white people of the state to separate into two distinct parties. That so soon as mony of the Party.

of the state to separate into two distinct parties. That so soon as this occur the negroes will follow-suit. Whether or not there is any force in this reasoning I will not undertake to say. There is, however, good reason for believing that such an experiment will be made. There has time out of mind existed an envious feeling between out of mind existed an envious reeing between the low country and the up country in South Carolina. The war and the succeeding decade of common suffering tended to crush out this feeling and to unify all sections of the state. feeling and to unify all sections of the sate. In the last few years, however, there has been noticed outcroppings of this old-time ani nosity. In the legislative halls this feeling has been frequently manifested during the past three years. During the recent session of the general assembly it assumed almost uncontrollable proportions and actually threatened the peace and good name of the state.

The readers of THE CONSTITUTION were ap The readers of THE CONSTITUTION were apprised of the stormy scenes which marked the closing hours of the session. The complications and embarrassments growing out of the agitation about the census question and the threatened dead-lock, are matters of the legislative history of 1885. It will be remembered that Governor Thompson in his message to the legislature strongly recommended that the necessary law should be enacted insuring the taking of the census so required by the constitutions. taking of the census so required by the consti-tution of the state; that the house of representatives, in obedience to the express mandsentatives, in obedience to the express mand-date of the constitution, promptly passed a bill to provide for the census: that the senate refused to pass the bill; that the house, determined to-perform its sworn duty, incorporated an amendment into the general appropriation bill making an appropriation for the taking of the census; that the senate stubbornly fought this amendment and recorded to show the size. census; that the senate stubborniy longht this amendment and resorted to sharp tactics to defeat it; that the members of the house, while conscious of the impregnability of their position, yet sacrificed their opinions and their rights on the altar of patriotism, This they did, under protest, to avert the direful consequences of a protracted dead-lock, throwing all the blame on the stubborn minority. Pending quences or a protracted dead-lock, throwing all the blame on the stubborn minority. Pending the heated discussion of the question, two days before adjournment, one of the speakers warn-ed the legislature that if it gave way to a min-ority and receded from its position, the people would take the question into their own hands and make it an issue in the next campaign. The words of this member will doubtless prove true. Already mutterings, loud and angry, are heard in various parts of the state. The chorus of discontent starting in the mountain regions, gains increment of force as it swells

chorus of discontent starting in the mountain regions, gains increment of force as it swells toward the sea coast.

The subjoined thoughtful and spirited article from the Columbia Register, gives a good insight into the situation:

"The up country is open-mouthed about making a proper apportionment an issue in the next campaign. This being the case, it is as well to see what is the ground of complaint which arises in default of an enumeration and reapportionment. As near as we can approximate the figures, we find the following results: Charleston county is very certainly under 60,000 population at his period, Edgefield and Barnwell together possibly foot up 95,000 today; Abbeville and Anderson 83,000; Greenville and Spartanburg 90,000; Richmond and Orangeburg 78,000; Sumter and Marion 78,000. Now, then, if Charleston county has twelve representatives to say 60,000 people, this gives one representative to every 5,000. At this rate Edgefield and Barnwell should have 19 representatives, they have only 10; Abbeville and Anderson should have 16, they have only 19; Greenville and Spartanburg should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 19; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 15, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter and Marion should have 16, they have only 10; Sumter

AN IMPORTANT LINE.

A New Road to be Built Between Savannah and Macon.

A day or two ago a corps of surveyors started out front Savannah for the purpose of making a preliminary survey of the Savannah, Dublin and Western Short Line railroad. Another surveying party left Dublin about the same time, and the two will continue in the field until they meet.

A. B. Linderman, of Philadelphia, is the president of the company, and Arthur Pou is the chief engineer. These gentlemen were in Savanuah before the surveying party started out and had a conference with representatives of the construcconference with representatives of the construc-tion company.

Mr. Linderman says that the company has all the money required to build and equip the road, and that it will be in operation between Savannah and Macon within twelve months from January I. The road as proposed will be an air line, or nearly so, of 157 miles between these two points. It is also pro-posed to build a branch from Dublin to Americus, lessening the distance by rail between Americus and Savatnah seventy-two miles. The Americas branch will be an air line from Dublin. The main line from Savannah to Macon will run through the counties of Chatham, Bryan, Bulloch. Tattoall, Emanuel. Montgomery. Laurens, Wilkinson, Twiggs, Fulaski, Houston, booly, bodge, Sumter and Bibb, penetrating a timber district of 2,000,000 acres, all of which is virgin forest and reaching, by the Americus branch, the center of the cotton beit of Georgia.

the Americus branch, the center of the footgas, of Georgia.

The charter of the Macon and Dublin road, ten miles of which from Macon towards Dublin are already graded, has been secured. This road will be completed in accordance with the original survey, and will form a part of the through line. The line from Dublin to Savannah is an air line of about 12 miles.

and will form a pair of the through line of about 120 miles.

"We shall break ground and begin grading this end of the road," Mr. Linderman said, "just as soon as the line is located. The right-of-way has been secured very nearly the entire distance. Mr. Pou, our chief engineer, has gone over the country through which the road will be built, or horseback and has full assurances of the right-of-way. That is all we propose to ask."

—Mr. Linderman states that the road can be built and equipped, ready for operation, for $10,000 per mile. The equipment will include steel rails, Baldwin locomotives, between 400 and 500 cars, and everything for the successful operation of the road. The purpose of the road, the projectors state, is than any now existing to Savannah for cotton, lumber and naval stores and other products of the interior of the state. The Americus branch, which is intended to connect with the Americus, Presson and Lumpkin railroad will extend into the heart of the cotton district. The main line is intended to open up a vast region of heavily timbered country, which is now almost valueless owing to its inaccessibility. The distance between the Central and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia roads half way between Savannah and Macon is about 66 miles. The proposed road will run through the center of Chatham country, which it is intended to develop, very nearly equi-distant from the above roads. Mr. Linderman claims for the proposed road a route between Savannah and Macon 56 miles shorter than any now existing. The rail distgnce between Savannah and Americus, he claims, will be lessened 72 miles. "All that remans now," he said, "is to locate the lines and this will take but a very short time, and then we shall begin grading at once."

The construction of the road, Mr. Linderman states, will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, so as to have everything complete before 1887. The company, he says, has all the money it requires and only asks for the right of way. It is understood that English capitalists are backing the enterprise.

Nothing has yet been done in regard to terminal facilities in Savannah. Mr. Linderman has ha a number of interviews with East Tennes-ee, Virginia and Georgia officials, and it is understood that a connection will be made at Macon with that road giving an outlet over its lines. There is also talk of a connection will be made at Macon with that road giving an outlet over its lines. There is also talk of a connection with the proposed Macon and Covington road and the Richmond and Danville system.

Mr. Linderman says that the road will be commenced before he leaves the texts which will be

RAILROAD CLATTER.

ANDY GALLAGHER, of Chattanooga southern passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific, passed through Atlanta yesterday morning with forty North Carolina darkeys on their way to Texas.

THE East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad has found its southern bound cannon-ball train so popular and profitable that at an early day a northern bound cannon-ball train will be put on the road.

CAPTAIN J. J. GRIFFIN, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, visited Macon

Reau Campbell's "Pointer" for the month of December is a perfect gem. It is as bright and sparkling as a mountain stream and as pretty as a watering place belle. The "Pointer" is brim full of interesting railroad news and well selected reading matter. The "Pointer" is a great success, and it could not be otherwise, as Reau Campbell is an Atlanta man to the core, and graduated as a newspaper editor in the gate city. Long live the Pointer, and longer live the genial and enterprisng editor.

THE AMERICAN TURF. A Great Match Proposed Between Miss Woodford and Freeland, Woodford and Freeland.

New York, January 8.—[Special.]—The American turf flourishes more and more each year, and it was never in greater popular favor than at the present day. Last summer the races at the different pleasure resorts were attended by thousands, and the money that changed hands ran up into seven figures. The Futurity stakes appearanced for ISSS at Sheep. changed hands ran up into seven figures. The Futurity stakes, announced for 1888, at Sheepshead Bay, for two-year olds, has already 693 entries, and several prominent breeders have not yet been heard from. It is also expected by the Coney Island Jockey club that several entries from France and England will be made. The stakes will be worth about $50,000, one of the biggest prizes ever run for and far more.

The stakes will be worth about $50,000, one of the biggest prizes ever run for, and far more valuable than the famous English Derby.

Another famous match, negotiations of which are now under way, will be between Miss Woodford and Freeland. Michael Dwyer was in Kentucky the other week, and so pleased was he with Miss Woodford's improvement since turned out there, that he authorized Mr. Barnes to try to arrange a match with Freeland. Barnes to try to arrange a match with Freeland for anything from $5,000 up. The distance will be one and a quarter miles, the same as in the match races of last year, unless the owners of Freeland desire to have it longer. The only objection to the race is that one party wants it in the east and the other in the west.

One of the Dwyer brothers in speaking of the match today, said: "We desire to have the race in the east, as it is not our intention to go to Chicago or any other place in the west to race Miss Woodford against so good a horse as Freeland. If Mr. Corrigan wants the match he must come here. We can make $5,000 to $10,000 here with the mare, without the risk of losing that amount while we are going back and forth. Last year Freeland was the better horse, but Miss Woodford was not at her best. She is doing so nicely now down in Kentucky that I have every hope for her in the coming racing season. It was a wise thing in sending

A Vacancy in Dispute.

Washington, January 8.—It is rumored in army circles that the president will shortly recommend to congress the passage of a bill authorizing him to fill the office of judge advocate general of the army at once. General Swaim, who formerly held that office, was sentenced by court martial to suspension for twelve years, at the end of which time he will be placed on the retired list. It is said that the president desires to fill the office, but is uncertain as to his powers in the premises. A uncertain as to his powers in the premises. A plan has been suggested that he nominate a person for the office, and let the senate pass on the legal questions at issue.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 8.—There is no material change in the character of the dealings at the stock exchange. The share market today has been very dull and on the whole weak. The transactions, however, have been confined almost entirely to operations between room traders, who think the market should have declined from 3 to 5 per cent. and who are evidently working to that end, but who, at the same time, are extremely timid and ready to take profits of small fractions whenever they exist. The market has been repeatedly ham-mered, but a decline of fractions has invariably been succeeded by a moderate reaction. The result of the day's operations is a net loss of ½ to ½ per cent for the general list, with a decline of over 1 per cent in Lackawanna and some of the inactive shares. Western Union, however, is up % per cent. There is a prevalent belief that some kind of an alliance is being formed between the Western Union and the Baltimore and Ohio, which will result ultimately in the harmonious working of the two companies, and the strength today in this stock has been due to the circulation of these reports. The coal trade is admittedly in a very unsatisfactory condition. A story was circulated this morning that the recent pool formed in Eric securities had bold our and that the recent pool formed in the securities had sold out, and that the manipulation of the market was for the purpose of selling stocks. There is manifestly no disposition on the part of the leading oul operators to do more than prevent any material The market closed barely steady. Sales

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce. Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, January 8-The feeling was rather stronger in wheat in early trading today with more disposition to cover by shorts. Offerings were not large as during the preceding two or three days, and covering on the part of shorts, together with some buying orders from other sources, caused the market to rule rather firm. Liverpool was quoted firm, but the main feature governing speculation was light receipts and reported cold, freezing weath er in the southwest, Export clearings from the scaboard also shows some little increase. On the other hand, the aggregate stocks of wheat and flour in the United Kingdon were announced to be about 27,000,000 bushels on December 31, 1835, against 14,000,000 at the same time in 1884, and 20,000,000 in 1883. The market advanced to 88% several times, but broke off and closed at 87% 20,000,000 at 10 clock. There was a break in the afternoon, May closing at 87% 20%, the wearness being at tributed to proposal by the French government to again increase the duty on foreign wheat. There was a fair shipping demand for corn, but speculation ruled light, which was also true of oats, prices showing very little change.

There was less doing in provisions, the market closing steady at about yesterday's figures.

SMALL SALVATION ARMY

TWO LADIES ORGANIZE AND DE-

An Interesting Talk With Two Ladies from Walton County Who Have Sworn Vengeance Against Illicit Distillers—They Propose to Con-tinue Their Work for Some Time.

Walton county has a small female salvation

They have been salivating an illicit distillery, and have created a sensation in their neck of the woods.

This salvation army is composed of Mrs. M. C. Buchanan and Mrs. A. J. Johnson, two elderly ladies, who have lived in that county all their lives.

These two ladies live in Tanner's district, about nine miles from Monroe, the county site. This district has long been a favorite one for the moonshiners to get in their work, on account of it being somewhat remote from the railroads, and in a mountainous part of the Several weeks ago an illicite distillery was started near Mrs. Buchanan's residence. This lady begged the moonshiners to quit and hunt other quarters. They refused, and she and

Mrs. Johnson decided that they would band themselves into A SALVATION ARMY and put a stop to it.

They stopped it. On Monday morning in Christmis weak they armed themselves with axes, and, marching to the still proceeded without ceremony to cut it to pieces.

While the women were engaged in cutting up the still, Revenue Agent Colquitt and Deputy Marshal McDonald, who had been informed that the still was running, were on their way to it to make a raid. They reached the place Monday night, and were surprised to find everything torn and beat up. They thought, after carefully viewing the situation, that some of the fraternity had been there ahead of them of the fraternity had been there ahead of them and done the work. They noticed, however, that the "cap" was gone, while the other ac-courrements were laying around in a de-molished condition. They returned to Atlanta and reported what had happened, and a few days ago they heard of the SMALL SALVATION ARMY, and also learned that they were the ones who had destroyed the still. Deputy Marshal McDonald went into the neighborhood and began an investigation. He worked the matter quietly and successfully. He found that Ed C. Tucker had a large "cap" secreted on his premises, and returning to Atlanta he went before Commissioner Haight and swore out a market for Tucker. warrant for Tucker.

Yesterday Mr. McDonald and Deputy Mar-shal Davis went down and arrested Tucker, at the same time subposing Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. Johnson, as witnesses, against him. The ladies willingly consented to come to Atlanta as witnesses, and were taken to Bethehem station, where they boarded the train for Atlanta, reaching here in the afternoon. The officers arrived with the prisoner last night, and he will be given a hearing before Committee Haight this morning at half past nine o'clock.

When the two ladies reached the city they were carried to Commissioner Haight's office where they remained during the afternoon. A representative of THE CONSTITUTION had with the ladies late in the afternoon. Mrs. Buchanan is a lady quite sixty years of age, long gray hair and piercing black eyes, a round face wreathed in smiles. She was neat-ly dressed in black. Mrs. Johnson is about ten years Mrs. Buchanan's junior, and bears every indication of a lady. She has raven every indication of a lady. She has raven black hair and hazel eyes, and conversed intelligently.

"Yes, sir," said Mrs. Buchanan in reply to a question from the reporter, "We cut up the still and I do not regret it."
"Why did you cut it up?" continued the reporter.

"Because," was the reply, "it was causing trouble in the neighborhood. Mrs. Johnson has two sons and I have three. These boys were visiting the still, and it might have been

'Did you warn the men who were running the still that you would destroy it?" "Certainly, we did, but it did no good, so on Monday morning during Christmas week we took axes on our shoulders and marched to the still, and there was little left of it when we departed. Some of the neighbors told us that we were not strong enough to cut it up, but when we reached the still new strength seemed to gather and I tell you, sir, in a hurry."

"Where was the still situated?"

"Near Smith & Perry's mill, about three-quarters of a mile from my house."
"How long had it been there?"

"How long had it been there?"

"I can't say exactly, but know it had been there long enough to create a great deal of trouble in the settlement."

"Who run the still?"

At this direct question the lady smiled and said: "It will be time enough to tell that tomorrow at the trial. We don't want to harm anyone, but it is settled in our minds that that hind of husiness must be storned. As soones. kind of business must be stopped. As soon as we destroyed the last still, we wrote out no-tices to the effect that all illicit distilleries tices to the effect that all illicit distilleries found within ten mi'es of our homes would be cut to pieces by us. If the people don't think we mean what we say, just let them go ahead, and—" "We will chop them up, sure," put in Mrs. Johnson.

Johnson.
"Yes, indeed, we will?" continued Mrs. Buchanan, "and I believe they begin to think we mean what we say. Some of them say they are going to sue us for damages, but I have no fears of that. They may sir, liquor and religion won't go together, and will find trouble in the neighborhood. We have determined to do our best to keep them down and we will do it. I understand that some men worked at the still all day Sunday before we cut it up."

before we cut it up."

"You both belong to the church?"

"Yes. Mrs. Johnson is a member of the Baptist church at Bethel, and I belong to the Methodist church at Bethehem."

"The church had nothing to do with your crusade against the stills?"

"No, no. We just made it up ourselves."

"When you return home if you find a still you will destroy it?"

you will destroy it?"
"Yes, indeed. We expect to keep it up as long as there is a still within ten miles of us. I wish all the WOMEN IN THE STATE would do as we are doing, and it wouldn't be long before that kind of business would be stopped. I wish these officers would get every one of the illicit distillers and keep them here. Some of the people down in that country have been telling us that the government would get after us and send us to jail for cutting up the stills, but Mr. Haight here says that the government don't care how many we destroy. We have gone into this thing and we are going to keep it up as long as we can find a still."

an find a still."

At this point in the conversation the ladies were called for to be carried to a boarding-house for the night.

One can tell by a look at their faces that they mean business.

A Sunday Night Lecture. Sunday night at the Central Presbyterian church a mass meeting will be held to listen to an address to be delivered by Rev. Dr. Witherspoon, of New Orleans. The doctor is chaplain of the Seaman's Bethel at New Orleans. The institution has grown into large dimensions, and is doing a wenderfully interesting work. It is a refuge for this eadly neglected and homeless class. It rescues thousands from the haunts of intemperance and vice to which they so readily fall victims. OUR BLIZZARD.

Old Hazen Getting in His Work in Good

Atlanta is having considerable weather.
At four o'clock yesterday afternoon a blizzard struck this neck o' the woods with full force and knocked the bottom sky-western crooked out of the thermometer.
At anta is evidently dancing the german with the north nele and playing nole with with the north pole and playing polo with Iceland.

The weather has not been settled since the 4th, when we had a considerable rain storm.

The barometer took an upward tendency on the 6th. It then fell steadily until yesterday at noon, when it reached a point lower than at any time during 1885. It then began going up rapidly.

At 6 a m yesterday at noon, when it reached a point lower than at any time during 1885. It then began going up rapidly. At 6 a. m. yesterday moraing the temperature was thirty-eight, and went up during the rain to 41.3 degrees. At 10 a.m. the thermometer stood at 36.7 degrees, and at 2 p.m. 36 degrees. At about 4 o'clock it began a rapid fall and the blizzard struck us in full force, and two hours later the mercury had reached 19.2 degrees. At 9 o'clock it was within 15.1 degrees of zero, and at 10 o'clock it was still dropping and registered 14 degrees above zero. During the day precipitation had taken place to the extent of 87 hundredths of an inch. At 8 a.m. yesterday high wind began and struck us at 7.45 at the rate of 32 miles an hour, tearing down Hazen's cold-wave flag floating from the topmost point of the customhouse, the haliards giving way under the strain. As the people saw the flag tumble they wished it had been Hazen's neck, and thus put an en't to all such blizzards. The wind blew all day, and up to twelve o'clock last night at the rate of from thirty to thirty-six miles per hour.

thirty to thirty-six miles per hour.

This is the coldest snap we have had this winter. On the 11th of February, 1884, the temperature fell to within 8 degrees of zero, and on December 30th, 1880, it went to one degree above zero, which was the lowest record made by the mercury since the signal station was opened in Atlanta, with the exception of January 6th, 1883, when it registered 1.3 degrees below zero. It is seldom that the old thing ever gets down to twelve degrees above zero at this point. At twelve o'clock last night the wind was from the west slowly slifting to the northwest. Clouds were flying from the northwest rapidly.

The Cold Wave in Georgia.

ROME, Ga., January S.—[Special.]—A cold wave struck Rome today. It rained vicebrity up to noon, when the weather changed and a light snow has been falling since. The thermometer fell rapidly, and tonight it is in-tensely cold and snowy.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—

It began snowing here at 6 o'clock this morn ing, and has been falling without cessation all day. It is now more than six inches deep. A strong wind has been blowing, and the weather is bitterly cold. AUGUSTA, Ga., January 8.—[Special.]—A slight snow commenced falling at eight o'clock

HER NAME IS EMPRESS.

A Talk With H. B. Carroll, Her Manager, About His Purchase.

H. B. Carroll, of St. Louis, who has charge of the elephant Empress, sold a few days ago in Walton county, and purchased by Mr. Car-roll for E. R. Campbell, of Chicago, reached Atlanta yesterday. Last night a CONSTITUTION Atlanta yesterday. Last night a Constitution reporter met Mr. Carroll at the National hotel, and asked him to say something about his purchase. "Well," said Mr. Carroll, "the elephant's name is Empress. She weighs three tons or more. I weighed her three times last summer, and the last time she sent the beam of a Fairbanks scale up at fifty-nine hundred peunds, and today ske is looking better and fatter than ever."

"How old is Empress?"

"How old is Empress?"
"I think she is between twenty-six and thirty. It is not an easy matter to tell an elephant's age with a less margin than those

What are you going to do with her?" "I am going to take her and the two camels to St. Louis and put them on exhibition at the fair grounds for the present. My ownership of them extends only to their management; I beught them for Mr. Campbell, who held a mortgage on the show, and he has told me to either dispose of them or use them in any way that I think proper. I may put them in the Zoological gardens in St. Louis.

"What did you give for Empress?"

"I paid $1,300, and she was dirt cheap at that price. If the bidding had been spirited Emess would have brought $3 000 st.,300. Since the sale I have been offered $2,200 for her. Last spring $5,000 was refused for her, and she is worth the money today. She is one of the finest elephants in the United States. Cole and Forepaugh own one each larger than her. Cole has Sampson and Forepaugh has Bolivar. Cole and Forepaugh for a paugh has Bolivar. Cole and Forepaugh for a year or more have been disputing with each other as to whether Sampson or Bolivar is the largest. My impression is that Sampson is, but I do not know to a certainty which is the

Where is Empress? "She and the two camels are on the road omewhere between Atlanta and Walton. A regro man who has been with the show for several years is with them driving them to Atlanta. He is a first rate man and I have great confidence in his acting for the best, no matter what turns up. I would give a hunred dollars, however, to know that Empress was all right at this minute When she left Monroe the weather was as fine as I could wish for it to be. This is pretty severe weather on her and I don't know how she will stand it, as she has not done much traveling in this sort of weather in a long time.

"I told the man in charge of her to use his best discretion and if she became leg weary to pull up an take a rest at some good point along the line. I would have given almost anything to know as much as I do now. I never expected any weather like this, and feel very uneasy about her. I would feel more so if I did not know that my man in charge of her will do what is best under any and all circumstances. I would not be at all surpris-ed to hear that they had taken shelter, and will remain housed until this cold spell is over. I hope that they will get here to nor-row and if they do, I will put Empress and the two camels up at Jones' stable until I can get transportation for them to St. Louis."

"How will you ship Empress?"
"Well, I will get an extra size box car and put her in it and bed the car abundantly with hay. The colored man in charge of her will go to St. Louis in the same car, and the two camels will be put in another box car. If the weather had remained good I would not have been surprised to see, them get here tonight. Sheriff John Ammons, of Monroe county. who is here with me, expressed a similar belief."

THE TWO LIONS.

The two lions, one a male and the other a female, that were purchased at the same sale by Adam Forepaugh, passed through Atlanta yesterday on their way to Philadelphia. They were securely boxed up in separate crates, made unusually strong and heavy, and left by express on the Richmond and Danville railroad.

Cure for Piles. Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighborhas some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's pile remedy, which acts directly upon the parts effected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piu O. Sold by Sharp Bres., C. O. Tyner and Goldsmith & Co.

THE MIDNIGHT MIXTURE

A Man Shoots off His Pistol-A Half Frozen Woman-Other Happenings. The cold snap yesterday and last night did not stir things up much in police circles; how-ever the stationhouse keeper was kept busy enough.

During the early part of the evening several homeless tramps appeared at police headquarters and applied for a warm place to sleep. They were stored away around the heater in the basement of the building by Stationhouse Keeper Ryan and kept warm through the night. If the present cold snap continues most of the gang will wish that the night would last until spring so that they may be near a pleasant fire.

Moreover 19 and 19 annie Walker, two colenough.

Annie Ramsey and Fannie Walker, two colored girls, engaged in a hair-pulling and scratching match on Jennings alley last night. The fight was accompanied by a considerable noise and cursing. It attracted the attention of a gentleman who telephoned to police headquarters. Officer Terry, who was on call duty, responded and arrested the two women. At police headquarters they were booked for disorderly conduct and quarrel-ing. Each one put up $5.75 for her appearance in police court this morning and was released.

SHOT OFF HIS PISTOL.

Yesterday afternoon, late, Rubolph Demmick, a young white man, awoke the fourth ward by repeatedly discharging his pistol. Some citizens protested against the promiscuous shooting, but Demmick said he did no ous shooting, but Demmick said he did no care, and shot again and again. The telephone was used to notify police headquarters, and officer Green invaded the fourth ward. He had no trouble in finding Demmick, as he had not quit shooting. Demmick was escorted to the city prison, where he gave up his pistol and five dollars as collateral for his appearance in police court this morning to answer the charge of discharging firearms in the city limits.

Jack McNeill, a negro man, was given a cell in the city prison last night, by Officers Wright and Terry. McNeill is considered a suspicious character, and will be held until his record can be investigated to the satisfaction of the expective of these arresting officers.

ON AND OFF TRAINS. Bud Williams, a colored man, amused himself yesterday afternoon by swinging on and off a railroad train while it was in motion. Williams cut anties that endangered his life and when Detectives Bedford and Steem in were notified they took Williams in. Tais morning he will answer in police court the charge of jumping on and off trains while in FOUND HER DRUNK. About midnight Patrolmen Stroud and Mehan found an unknown white woman near the customhouse in a half frozen condition. She was well under the influence of liquor and gave promise of freezing to death. The weather there was very cold, and the patrolmen decided to take the woman to miles headquarters. ed to take the woman to police headquarters. She objected to this step, but was finally given a chair in the city prison, where she was kept a chair in the city prison, where she was kep warm until daylight. The woman declined to give her name.

ALMOST A FIRE. About one o'clock this morning a gentle-man in passing down Pryor street detected just in time what promised to be a bad fire. On the sidewalk near the Hunter street en-trance to the city hall was a large keg in which ashes had been deposited. In the ashes fire was concealed. Some time about midnight the fire began working on the keg and when the gentleman passed by a bright blaze was leaping up. The key was near the stairway leading up. The key was near the stairway leading into the basement. Captain Manley responded to the alarm and succeeded in extinguishing the fire without turning in the alarm. Probably the timely discovery alone saved the building from catching fire. ON A WARRANT.

John Wilson was arrested last night by Patrolman Thompson. Wilson is a darky, and is charged with larceny.

"The Philosophy of Small Men." ATLANTA, January 7, 1886. Editors Constitution:—Learning that Rev. J. W. Lee, pastor of Trinity church, is soon to deliver his lecture, "The Philosophy of Small Men," in aid of some of the church's enterprises, I desise, before leaving the city, to say a word concerning the lec-ture to my friends. I have heard the lecture spoken by Brother Lee on two occasions. I am frank to say that I would rather hear it than any other lecture that has been given in Atlanta within my recollection, and I would rather hear it twice than any two lectures I have ever heard here.

As a lecture it is a unique production. It is replete with the soundest philosophy concerning our modern forms of life; it strikes boldly at some of the worst anachronisms of our civilization, deals vigorously with many widely popular errors of daily thought; and over all casts the witchery of true eloquence and patriotism. The whole is interspeken by Brother Lee on two occasions. I am daily thought; and over all casts the witchery of true eloquence and patriotism. The whole is interspersed with felicitous humor. I earnestly recommend all of my friends to hear the lecture. I can guarantee they will enjoy it.

It has, through the commendations paid it elsewhere, attracted general attention and has been sought for, through Dr. Charles F. Deems and others, for large assemblies in New York city and at the grand meetings of Christian thinkers at Chatanqua and Lake De Funiak, Fla. As testimonies to the abilities of Brother Lee and to the merits of his lecture these invitations should be convincing to our Atlanta lovers of a pure and high literary art.

ABOUT A BLIND HORSE. First He Did and Then He Didn't, Then He Said He Wouldn't.

The story is about an old blind, gray horse.

A. C. Gaddis bought the aforesaid animal from L. M. Simons for thirty dellars, paying part cash and part on time. When Gaddis bought the horse he knew he was blind and a very poor horse, Gaddis says that Simons said the horse was the day types on bought the says and a says that simons said the horse was sound and was as good as a one hundred dollar mule. When Gaddis was driving home the horse fell down while hooked to the wagon, and after getting him into the stable he lay and after getting him into the stable he lay down and was unable to get up. Gaddlis gave up the horse and entered suit against Simons, who plead guilty, and in the city court he plead guilty and was fined one hundred dollars and cost or six months in the changang.

Simons now files a bill of exceptions and will carry the case to the supreme court.

"Dream of Fair, Women." A brilliant audience assembled at Concordia hall last night to witness a delightful entertainment given by a number of Atlanta ladies and gen themen for "sweet charity's sake." The entertainment was a decided success in every way. First on the programme was Rubenstein's Polonaise, which was exquisitely played by Miss Mathews.

The sensation of the evening was the tableaux

The sensation of the evening was the tableaux from Tenuysoft's "Dream of Fair Women." The prom was read by Mr. Brock Beckwith, who performed that task to the satisfaction of the entire audience. Mr. Harry Hill took the rote of the dreaming poet, and the tableaux were as follows: dreaming poet, and the tabeaux were as follows: Helen, Mry. W. W. Austell: Iphigenia. Miss Sallie Johnson. Cleopatra, Mrs. Geo. Traylor: Jeptha's Daughter. Miss Conyers: Rosamond. Mrs. Jos. Thompson: Joan of Arc, Miss Kiser; Eleanor, Miss Bacon. A full description of these tableaux will appear

A full description of these tableaus in tomorrow's society news a short intermission. After the tableax there was a short intermission, after which Mr. Stephen A. Ryan sang a solo from Ernani. Miss Manie Ryan played an accompaniment, and Mr. Ryan sang admirably. His part in the programme was one of the most pleasing features of the entertainment, and the applicase which has received was unstinted.

The entertainment throughout was a decided success, and the ladies realized a handsome profit.

The Corner Grocery Last Night.

Dan'l Sully, in "The Corner Grocery," drew a small house last night.

This was due to the extremely cold night, and to the fact that a great many, who would have been present, went to see "The Dream of Fair Wo-men," at Concordia hall.

men," at Concordia hall.

The Corner Grocery is one of the best light comedies that has visited Atlanta this season, probably the best with the oxception of "Mixed Pickles" and like "Mixed Pickles" it played here in "hard The performance reminds one very much of Peek's bad boy, "Jimmy Nolan" taking the "bad boy" off very well, indeed. Mr. Daniel Sully as "Daddy Nolan, the upright man," was, of course the star, and the audience received him very kindly. His acting was natural, and evoked one round of laughter after another. The conclusion of the first act, where the bad boy aemolished the grocery store, was especially good, and the crowd cheered enthusiastically.

The company is a good one, and as their principal object is to create fun, they will be almost sure to succeed in pleasing lovers of comedy.

The performance will be repeated this evening at matince and tonight.

Annie Pixley.

The reappearance of Annie Pixley at the Opera House will lean event of decided interest to the amusement leving public. She is always welcome and is an established favorite, admired alike for her elever acting and her vocal culture. Her singing has always been a great attraction, and this time she brings with her several new songs and brilliant medleys, composed and arranged expressly for her, and several of the latest chansonettes, secured during her European trip. According to Boston critics her study abroad has added both to the quality of her voice and to the fluish of her white and acting f her singing and acting.

Dr. Estabrook Heard From.

Dr. Estabrook, who is in Ohio getting up his second excursion of farmers from that state, writes another letter to the governor from Dayton, in which he states that he and his excursion will reach Atlanta about February 5th, and asks that the Atlanta about February 5th, and asks that the governor arrange to give the excursion a reception in the state agricultural department. The letter has been turned over to Commissioner Henderson, who will do all that he can to give the farmers an appropriate and suitable reception upon their arrival here. Dr. Estabrook states that the members of the first excursion are so much pleased with Georgia and the manner in which they were received by the people of every portion of the state that they visited, that they are doing all that they can to assist him in getting up a big excursion. He reports his prospects as being exceedingly flattering and thinks that his second excursion will be much larger than his first.

WHITEHALL CROSSING. Another Remedy Proposed for the Crossing Nutsance and the Depot Jam. Mr. J. H. Kuhns said to a Constitution

an vesterday while discussing the Whitehall rossing nuisance:
"The best suggestion that I have noticed, "The best suggestion that I have noticed, and the one that meets my views, was the suggestion made by the Georgia Cracker, with illustrations. I presume you remember it. The idea was to build a handsome brick or stone front between the National hotel and the centenial building, one or two stories, having waiting rooms and such other rooms as would be necessary. The front or brick part would take up about one-third of the space between the street and the bridge. The rest of would take up about one-third of the space between the street and the bridge. The rest of the way beyond the bridge could be an iron shed similar to the present one, the width of which would give room for eight or ten tracks, which would be as many as would, ever be

"My idea," he continued, "would be to let the city, or the city and railroads together, build the depot as I suggest, and then all pas-senger trains would go out from the west side except one the Georgia railroad, and that would neced only one track coming out from the front. The Air-Line could go around by the belt road and come in on the Western and Atlantic tracks, though it would be still better if the Georgia and Air-Line could have a depot between the Markham house and the Georgia freight depot. Then there would be no tracks crossing Whitehall street."

What would you do with the vacated space?"

"The space between Whitehall and Pryor streets now occupied by tracks could be made into a beautiful little park, which would add much to appearance. The present depot could be made into a fine market house."

Week of Prayer.

Though the afternoon yesterday was quite stormy, many ladies and gentlemen gathered to the meeting to pray for nations and governments. the meeting to pray for nations and governments. Dr. Hawthorne-being absent, J. S. Pancheon presided. After singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer," prayer was offered by Rev, H. L. Crumley. The chairman then read Psalm lxxii., and Romans viii. 1-13. Then was sing "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne." Rev. T. P. Cieveland took the place of Professor W. W. Lumpkin. He said that this day was an important one, as we were praying God to bless the nations of the earth. God cannot be eliminated from the government of the nations no more than he can from the home. We are to ask Jesus to rule through all those in authority. Paul exhorts us to pray for princes and all rulers, that we may live in peace. This world will never be at peace until Jesus regins in the hearts of all rulers. When Victoria received the announcement of her accession to the throne, she called upon the archbishop of Canterbury to pray to God in her behalf. Prayer has been the stability of England. God holds nations responsible as he does individuals, and Chrisianus ought to seek to make their nations such that God can bless them. Christ's kingdom is one of righteousness. Can God bless us as a nation with such officers and magistrates in high places as we have in many parts of our union?

Rev. Mr. Witherspoon, of New Orleans, spoke of congress; that some of the congressmen and senators were real Christians. Recently he has been in Washington, and passing among our representatives, he did not hear an oath, nor see a druhken legislator. In traveling he has found much to encourage us, that the United States is becoming more truly Christian.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Golden. Atlanta is to loose this cannot the little things that interest in the proper of the reverse of the leave for his new home. Dr. Hawthorne being absent, J. S. Pancheon presi a church in New Orleans, and is soon to leave for his new home.

Brother Pancheon said that we were inclined to pray about the little things that interest us merely, instead of remembering the royal prerogative to ask Him in regard to the nations and governments. God wants us to come to Him about all things interesting us. We can come today and ask God to bless our legislators and make them do His will in reference to temperance, education and the suppression of vice, and all that they have to do Prayer by W. F. Parkhurst.

Today at 3 p. m. prayer for Christian life. Dr. E. H. Barnett will preside. Addresses by Judge Jackson and Mayor George Hillyer.

Not Till Monday. On occount of the death of Mrs. Sidney Root, sister to Judge Marshall J. Clarke, there will be no business transacted in the superior court till Monday. The cases of Gray vs. Dobbins and Hoyt & Co. vs. Gamnell were to have been heard yesterday, but were postponed. ANGOSTURABITTERS is a household word all over the world. For over fifty years it has advertised itself by merit. It is now advertised to warn the public against counterfeits. The genuine article is manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

Take Care of the Children.

For children, Brandreth's Pills are simply invaluable. One or two Pills taken every night for ten days will cure them of scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, colds, diarrhora or local pains.

Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable-con tain no mercury, mineral or dangerous drug. They require no care in diet or exposure, and are perfectly safe for old or young, male or female. One or two at night, for a week, taken on an empty stomach, will cure the worst case of dyspepsia, liver complaint or rheumatism.
